CAMP RAMADI, Iraq — Soldiers with 4th Advise and Assist Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, United States Division–Center, paid tribute to women whose efforts helped pave the way for other women today during an equal opportunity observance program, Aug. 26.

The observance, at the Ramadi Event Center, celebrated the 90th anniversary of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which granted women the right to vote.

“The women’s rights movement started with ordinary women wanting the same rights that their husbands had — the right to vote and to help create the laws they had to live by,” said Sgt. 1st Class Sundi Ganaway, with 703rd Brigade Support Battalion, 4th AAB. “These ordinary women became extraordinary in their accomplishments. They persevered through many things, to include being thrown in jail, in order to ensure we, as women, were granted the right to vote. In doing so, they opened up the doors for other women.”

13th CSSB keeps 'morally fit'

Sgt. Gaelen Lowers

3rd Sustainment Bde. Public Affairs

JOINT BASE BALAD, Iraq – The 13th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion, 3rd Sustainment Brigade, 103rd Sustainment Command (Expeditionary), held a moral fitness luncheon at the Sgt. Audie Murphy Room in the Oasis Dining Facility on Joint Base Balad, Iraq, Aug. 12.

The moral fitness luncheon is a monthly program set up by the leadership of the 13th CSSB and its chaplain, Chap. (Capt.) Mark A. Johnston, the 13th CSSB chaplain, to talk about the seven Army core values: loyalty, duty, respect, selfless service, honor, integrity, and personal courage.

Every month the topic changes to a new core value, said Chap. Johnston. This is the third meeting the battalion has held in Iraq but regularly held them when they were stateside.

“It’s an attempt to instill the Army values in the Soldiers and the leadership,” said Chap. Johnston. “We also want to show the importance of them and how we need to live them out in our daily lives. As we work together, as we do things with our Families and anything else we do, we need to live the Army values.”

This month the topic was on loyalty. Loyalty, said Chap. Johnston, is one of those things that everyone knows about, but nobody can define for you.

According to the Army, the definition of loyalty is to bear true faith and allegiance to the U.S.

Constitution, the Army, your unit and other Soldiers. Webster’s dictionary defines loyalty to be unswerving in one’s allegiance.

“General Colin Powell said this about loyalty, ‘When we are debating an issue, loyalty means giving me your honest opinion, whether you think I’ll like it or not. Disagreement at this stage stimulates me, but once a decision is made the debate ends. From that point on, loyalty means executing the decision as if it were your own,’” said Chap. Johnston. “That’s an interesting statement about loyalty and one example of compulsory loyalty. That is what the Army definition states.”

He then went on to explain one’s devotion and loyalty to his/her spouse and Families and how they are considered personal loyalties.

“Even if you know that someone in your Family did something wrong, you cannot be forced, according to the American system of government, to testify against them in a court of law,” said Chap. Johnston.

Members of the group chimed in with questions and comments during the duration of the luncheon, but by the end, left with a better understanding of loyalty, why it is important and why it is one of the Army’s core values, said Chap. Johnston.

“I think everyone took something away from this luncheon,” he concluded. “Physical fitness is a requirement and so is moral fitness for the Army. If we call ourselves leaders then we have to set an example.”

Pulaski Elementary School breaks ground on Hunter Army Airfield

Nancy Gould

Hunter Army Airfield Public Affairs

Military and civilian leaders broke ground on Hunter Army Airfield, Aug. 24, at the Pulaski Elementary School site on South Perimeter Road where a new school building will replace the existing one, located just beyond the Montgomery Street Gate.

“This is really fantastic,” said Kamal Piankhi, Pulaski Elementary School principal, before the ceremony. “The staff is so energized about this new state-of-the-art school. We’ve been talking about it for some time now; we’re grateful that the plans finally came together.”

About 50 percent of the children currently enrolled at Pulaski Elementary School have one or more parents in the military, according to Piankhi.

Relocating a public school onto government-owned property at Hunter Army Airfield is a first for the Savannah Chatham County Public School System.

Get ready for the Great MWR Yard Sale

Bob Mathews

Family and MWR Marketing Publicity Specialist

It’s time to tidy up that extra room or your garage, sort out your stuff and sign up to sell it at the semi-annual Great MWR Yard Sale at Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield.

Registration for the popular event opened, Sept. 1. But do not put off registering until the last minute - planning ahead is recommended.

“Last year, we filled up the Club Stewart parking lot, and we had to cut off the registration about a week before the sale,” said Randy Walker, Intramural Sports Director, who is coordinating the Stewart event.

Club Stewart can accommodate 100 to 120 sellers, Walker said.

The sale will be held from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m., Oct. 23 at the Club Stewart parking lot, and during the same hours at the Credit Union parking lot at Hunter. Sales also will be conducted at on-post housing.

The registration deadline for post housing sales is Oct. 19. The deadline for parking lot site registration is Oct. 22.

Vendors (active-duty Soldiers, Family Members, retirees, and DoD Civilians) will be charged $5 for parking lot space. At Club Stewart, the first 40 vendors to sign up will be provided a table; all others will have to furnish their own table.

Additional rental tables will be available at $5 each at Club Stewart and Hunter Credit Union sale locations.

There is no charge for sales by residents of post housing, but pre-registration is required. Addresses of on-post housing sale sites will be highlighted on maps distributed to shoppers.

Sellers can sign up at Bennett Sports Complex, building 471, or Tominac Fitness Center, building 919. For details, call 912-767-8238 at Fort Stewart, or 912-315-2019 at Hunter.

A sale of excess Non-Appropriated Funds property will be conducted at the same time as the Great MWR Yard Sale. Details to be announced.

DUNCAN JONES' NEW FILM, REVIEWED

Sasha McBrayer
The Frontline Contributor

Duncan Jones is the son of David Bowie, a filmmaker and a gift to the world of science fiction. His first full length feature film is called "Moon" and is available on DVD. "Moon" is psychological horror, the kind strikes the viewer with awe once the truth is understood. There are no monsters or screams. Instead, a tale unravels in the loneliest location imaginable, alone on the surface of the moon in the near future.

Sam Bell is portrayed by actor Sam Rockwell ("Charlie's Angels," "Iron Man 2," and soon to be in 2011's comic book adaptation "Cowboys and Aliens"). Bell has been alone on the moon mining the earth's latest power source out of the rocky surface and shipping it back home for our consumption. He is nearing the end of his 3-year contract and can't wait to return home to his wife and child. He's had no real time contact with anyone aside from the robot GERTY voiced by Kevin Spacey and bringing to mind HAL from "2001: A Space Odyssey."

The technology has been conveniently malfunctioning so as to only allow Bell to send and receive video messages on lengthy delay.

After Bell has an accident outside in a mining vehicle, he wakes up mysteriously returned to the inside of his base camp. He catches a glimpse of GERTY having a live video conference with his bosses. No delay. Then he returns to the site of his accident to find a body where his should have been. The truth is worthy of Hitchcock.

Duncan Jones has more sci-fi on the brain. He will direct "Source Code," starring Jake Gyllenhaal, Vera Famiga and Michelle Monaghan. In it, a Soldier is forced into an experimental procedure where he must relive an incident over and over, like "Groundhog Day," until he can determine its cause and prevent the next occurrence perpetrated by the same sinister group.

He also plans a follow-up to "Moon" called "Mute" where Rockwell will cameo as Sam Bell. Color me excited!

"Moon" was tons better than "Pandorum," which tried to do way too much with one film.

Kidnap Kings rock COS Marez

Spc. Dustin Gautney,
2nd AAB, 3rd ID Public Affairs

CONTINGENCY OPERATING SITE MAREZ, Iraq – Soldiers from the 2nd Advise and Assist Brigade, 3rd Infantry Division, were treated by piano-rock alternative band Kidnap Kings, to a concert held at Contingency Operating Site Marez, Aug. 22.

The concert at COS Marez was part of a six-concert tour throughout Iraq, including concerts at Joint Base Balad and Camp Victory, in Baghdad.

“Just the opportunity to come out here and play for Soldiers is why we do this,” said Sebastian Davin, lead vocalist and pianist for the band.

“We don’t quite have what it takes to do what all of you [Soldiers] do, so this is our way of helping out anyway we can,” said Davin, a Minnesota native.

Davin’s younger brother, Seth Davin, the guitarist for the band, agreed.

“We come here because the Soldiers are here ... we care about what is going on with the Soldiers, so the best way is to come out here to see and talk to the Soldiers in person,” said Seth.

The trip to COS Marez marked the second time the band has played in Iraq and the third time for the Davin Brothers, who were playing with a different band the first time.

“Even visiting over the past few years we can tell there have been a lot of changes,” Seth said. “Before, we’d play at a lot of very remote locations, but now everyone seems more centralized on the larger bases, so it’s great to see that things really are progressing for the country and our Soldiers over here.”

The Davin brothers performed music from the Kidnap Kings’ soon-to-be-released album, “Flashing Lights and Sound,” which featured the singles “Into this Disaster,” “Anything She Wants,” and a cover of Journey’s “Don’t Stop Believing.”

SCHOOL

According to Calvin Shipman, project manager, Hunter’s Directorate of Public Works, initiatives to locate the school on Hunter started in 2008 with a request from the Savannah-Chatham County Public School System. A draft concept was approved in 2009, and the lease was signed and executed by the U.S. Savannah District Corps of Engineers in August 2010.

Military leaders, such as Lt. Col. Jose Aguilar, Hunter Army Airfield garrison commander, believe the move onto Hunter property makes good sense.

“We get a new school that’s closer for our military children; and the school gets to continue to operate at its present location without disruption during the 10 months of construction on the new school, located on Hunter,” he said. “Both parties have put lots of effort into bringing this initiative to fruition. It’s indicative of the symbiotic relationship we have with the City of Savannah.”

“This is a great day for Pulaski,” said Dr. Joe Buck, Savannah Chatham Public School Board president, who spoke at the ground-breaking ceremony. “Walking into a new building will make all the difference in the morale of students and the staff.”

The 89,762 square-foot school will be located on the grounds of Hunter, but civilian children and staff members will access it from an secure entrance located on Tibet Avenue.

It will feature 38 classrooms for pre-kindergarten through 5th grade students; music and art classrooms and a computer/technology lab. Other features include an 8,000 square-foot physical education facility with a full-size gymnasium; a cafeteria for after-school activities, which includes a stage for productions and assemblies; a 7,700 square-foot media center.

“We know the importance of investing in our children,” said Lt. Col. Aguilar. “It’s both military and civilian kids who reap the benefits.”

Amy Gillespie, intelligence officer for Brigade Special Troops Battalion, 4th AAB, for her participation in the Vanguard Brigade’s Women’s Equality Day observance.

During the observance, female Soldiers assigned to 4th AAB gave audience members a glimpse of those efforts with a theatrical performance highlighting the accomplishments of Susan B. Anthony, Alice Paul and Helen Wyatt Snapp.

“Because these women worked deliberately and continuously to create a better world, I am empowered, inspired and motivated to take charge of my own destiny and continue to celebrate the right to vote while honoring the strength of a woman,” said Sgt. Latina Brown, with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 4th AAB.

First Sergeant Valerie Cleary, first sergeant of Company B, Brigade Special Troops Battalion, 4th AAB, and guest speaker at the event, talked about several achievements women have made—from Margaret Corbin, who was the first female to receive recognition for heroism on the battlefield in 1779, to Pfc. Kia Lester, a combat medic currently assigned to BSTB, 4th AAB, who helped provide medical assistance to fellow Soldiers whose vehicle was recently hit by an RKG-3 (grenade).

First Sergeant Cleary said the legacy of female pioneers in the past lives on through the lives of many today.

Liberty Co School system, DoD recognized for partnership

Special to The Frontline

The Liberty County School System and the Department of Defense, Fort Stewart Garrison Command were recently recognized at the Georgia Career and Technical Education Association Conference in Atlanta. The duo received the award for “Unique Work-Based Learning/Youth Apprenticeship Business Partnership.”

The partnership between the Department of Defense and the Liberty County School System began in January 2009. A memorandum of agreement was written up and signed by all stakeholders involved. The Student Temporary Employment Program employs an average of 30 students each school year. Students from Bradwell Institute and Liberty County High School are eligible to participate.

“We are so pleased to have these work-based learning options for our students in so many different career paths,” said Dr. Judy Scherer, Liberty County School System Superintendent. “Fort Stewart is a major employer in our community, and it gives our students the opportunity to learn about jobs on post as well as gain a greater understanding of the role of the military in our community. We appreciate our growing relationship with the military and the opportunities this program provides for our students. It is a great partnership.”

Selection for participation in the program is based on academic performance, character and teacher recommendations. In addition to earning well above minimum wage, students also have other benefits such as annual leave. Not only are the students earning a paycheck, but they are also gaining valuable on-the-job training in the area of their career pathway.

“This apprenticeship program reaps tremendous benefits for the future,” said William Jeffers, Resource Management Officer, Fort Stewart-Hunter Army Airfield. “We are able to introduce a new generation to the honor and rewarding sacrifice of serving our Soldiers and Family Members.”

Littering is a problem, let's 'pick it up' a notch

Commentary by Dee Mincey
DPW Environmental, Fish and Wildlife Branch

With the current elections, it comes as no surprise that many political issues are being raised and discussed at our lunch counters, dinner tables, and barber shops. Included in these issues are a number of controversial environmental concerns. In the last few years, this nation has come a long way in terms of raising its level of environmental consciousness; we have become more aware of our natural world and revel at its mystery and beauty. We recycle. We reuse. We have made conscious efforts to reduce our volume of waste. With the current fluctuations in automobile fuel costs, some of us are even changing what and how we drive.

Despite valiant efforts to be more environmentally friendly and better stewards of our environment, some folks need to implement better “housekeeping.” Littering is a problem, and here at Fort Stewart, we all need to “pick it up” a notch. While littering occurs throughout the installation, trash is frequently strewn along the edges of ponds, streams, and river banks. Ironically, those individuals who are responsible for these deplorable actions are often the same ones out there trying to soak-in nature. They are carelessly degrading the very resource they are trying to enjoy!

The more common items found include cigarette butts, plastic bags, plastic bait containers, plastic bottles, aluminum cans, six-pack holder rings, and styrofoam cups. These items require long periods of time before they degrade in nature. For example, cigarette butts can take up to 12 years to degrade, plastic bags up to 20 years, plastic bottles and aluminum cans 450-500 years, and Styrofoam never degrades. This is staggering when you consider that many of these items will be washed into streams and rivers, ultimately wind up in the ocean, and possibly be there forever!

Did you know that many living things can be affected by trash left on the river bank? Sea turtles often consume plastic bags causing intestinal disorders and even death, all the while thinking it was one of their favorite foods...jellyfish. Also, many wading birds and shore birds fall victim to plastic items such as six-pack holders and discarded fishing line when it becomes entangled around necks, wings or legs. Though littering is generally done by only a few careless individuals, the presence of trash sometimes gives license to others to follow suit, though they would not have normally done so. The more trash people see, the more likely they are to leave some trash of their own. Remember, your trash is just that...your trash. Make sure it finds a proper receptacle instead of finding its way into the environment that you and I enjoy.

Fort Stewart includes some of the more pristine habitat of the southeast. The Installation's implementation of habitat management programs has returned thousands of acres to native vegetation that is ideal for Soldiers to use for training. Our Soldiers are outstanding stewards of the environment, even as they are conducting challenging and realistic training exercises. Their efforts have preserved a beautiful environment found in precious few places in Georgia; do not let the carelessness of a few individuals pollute a place so special.

Please be mindful of where you leave your trash. Set a good example by taking trash bags along with you on outings and leaving the outdoors cleaner than you found it.

September full of fun for Coastal Georgia

Bruce Muncher
Special to The Frontline

Welcome to the month of September. After a brutally hot summer, the month that ushers in Fall brings a sigh of relief to all of us. Soon the day light hours begin to get noticeably shorter and the night and day time temperatures begin to feel ever so slightly cooler as Mother Nature’s innate role begins to take hold.
As temperatures begin to moderate and the leaves begin to change and fall, the human cycle begins to change also. This is evident by the numerous outdoor festivities that comprise the list below. With schools back in session and football being played, Fall is very close behind. Soon, we will celebrate the strong work ethic of our great nation and honor the lives of those who we lost on that tragic day on Sept. 11, 2001. As our own Marne heroes begin to return home after a long deployment, our Fall season and our Families will be complete. So get on those shorts and walking shoes and take advantage of the events and magic of coastal Georgia. Each new day brings with it a new discovery. So be sure to venture off your normal path and enjoy some of the following events and festivities:

Sept. 3 - First Friday Fireworks on the River, Savannah River Street, www.riverstreetsavannah.com.
